

TRUTH

"The naked truth" is a familiar expression. In reality, truth is always naked, because if it is dressed up, it is no longer truth. That is probably why so many people avoid the truth. They are sorely embarrassed by its nudity.

— Rabbi Eizel of Slonim

I try to see and understand the truth in all of its aspects no matter how hard accepting the truth might be.

The key is to find it, see it, deal with it, accept it, and ultimately learn from it. It is truth, and I don't want to hear that old canard that "you have your truth and I have my truth" as though truth is subjective and/or relative. Truth is either true or it is not true.

When I hear people say "there is no such thing as absolute truth" my response is, "Is that absolutely true?" It is scripturally true that a person can know the truth and that knowledge of the truth can indeed "make" you free.

As a child I discovered, albeit more than a couple of spankings and a few mouthfuls of soap too late, that the truth is easier to remember than a lie. Why, because as opposed to remembering at different times exactly what you said, truth is always the same simply because it is true.

On the radio as well I attempt to always present the truth. Not just the truth as I know it, but truth as the facts demand it. The Truth, the Whole Truth, and Nothing But the Truth meaning the facts, all of them with nothing left out, and none of your personal perceptions or opinions added to those facts.

So, sit back, relax, turn on The Bob Jones Show and let's see where the Truth takes us. It ought to be quite a journey. One heck of a ride!
